

This year's Duke of Edinburgh's International Award (DofE) cohort has been simply amazing. To continue with their Award despite the numerous, and at times, seemingly insurmountable challenges, is a real testament to their commitment to self-improvement and willingness to help those in their local community. Whether it was macro projects like eliminating world hunger or helping an elderly neighbour with their shopping, their contributions to others are sincere and the benefits have been felt by many.

HRH Prince Philip was a champion of the infinite potential of young people and a pioneer in non-formal education and learning. As we mark his 100th year, the Award family is determined to ensure that The Duke's vision can continue and grow for many years to come. HRH Prince Philip would have been very proud of Bangkok Patana DofE participants' accomplishments achieved through the DofE program.
