20th February 2025

Dear Parents,

The Importance of Play in KS1 Tuesday 25th February: Primary Hall (8 - 9am)

Please join us for a workshop dedicated to exploring the importance of child-led play in supporting learning and development in Key Stage 1. In this session, we will share research that explains the powerful impact of child-led play on cognitive development, as well as how we define and incorporate play within our school.

By the end of the session, you will have a deeper understanding of how play supports your child's learning, and we'll share practical advice on how you can engage in meaningful play at home to further promote their development.

The objectives of this workshop include:

- Understanding the research behind child-led play and its impact on cognitive development.
- Learning how our school defines, and fosters play in the classroom.
- Gaining insights into the key role play has in your child's learning journey.
- Exploring ways to engage with your child in play at home to reinforce learning.
- Practical tips on fostering independent and creative play at home.

We look forward to seeing you there and discussing how we can support your child's growth through the power of play.
